Carranza Warns American Troops To Leave Mexico

Troop Of Third Cavalry Strikes Hot Trail Of Mexican Bandits North Of Brownsville—Determined To Nip Outlawry In The Bud.

WASHINGTON, D. C., JUNE 17.—"The situation at San Benito is not such as to warrant alarm. We regard the situation concerning the Trevino-Pershing correspondence as not at all serious. We don't expect any trouble."

In these three sentences Secretary of War Baker summed up the Mexican situation tonight after a conference at the White House with President Wilson. Baker was closeted with the President a quarter of an hour.

The above statement regarding the Mexican situation is the first official word spoken about the trouble along our southwest border since the Trevino-Pershing incident. Secretary Baker says General Funston has control of the situation. He, Baker, refuses to make public the ultimatum that Trevino sent to Pershing, as well as the reply made by Pershing.

BROWNSVILLE, TEX., JUNE 17.—A troop of the Third cavalry under Lieut. A. D. Newmans, has struck a hot trail of Mexican bandits north of Brownsville, it was reported to army headquarters here today. The bandits are supposed to have been there, among those who attacked U. S. soldiers near San Benito last night.

WASHINGTON, JUNE 17.—General Funston advised the war department today that he was informed by General Bell at El Paso that General Pershing had been warned by General Trevino, the Carranza commander at Chihuahua, that any movement of the American expedition to the south, west or east, would be a signal for an attack by the Mexican forces.

No word has come so far from General Pershing himself but even before the arrival of General Funston's message department officials were inclined to credit newspaper dispatches telling of the Trevino warning. Preparations have been made for any eventuality and Pershing is ready to deal with any force that may be sent against him. It is probable, however, that he will hold to his present lines, and make no move to percipitate hostilities.

General Funston reported also that Major Gray of the Fourteenth cavalry commanding the two troops attacked by Mexicans at San Iganacio, Texas, recently had returned from an effort to pick up the trail of the bandits. The cavalry rode some distance down the American side of the river, crossed to the Mexican side on reports that a bandit mobilization was in progress, turned north again on the Mexican side for several miles and recrossed into American territory without having encountered any outlaws or finding a trail. Two additional prisoners were captured on the American side and the body of another dead Mexican found in the brush near the scene of the attack.

Major Gray reported he had received assurances of co-operation from Carranza military commanders across the line. The Mexican officials said they had captured twenty men believed to have been engaged in the attack on the American camp.

The American commander said he believed the band had been broken up, and that no further activities were to be expected from that particular force.

Practically all available regulars of the United States army, including many coast artillerymen, already are on the border or in Mexico and the national guard of Texas, Arizona and New Mexico are in service for patrol duty. The guardsmen of other states were notified some weeks ago to be prepared to respond if it should become necessary to call them out.

It was learned today that considerable correspondence has been exchanged between the department and the governors and adjutants generals of various states relative to the new status given the guardsmen under the Hay-Chamberlain army organization bill which becomes effective July 1. These messages are presumed to have caused recurrent reports that the entire force of the national guard was being prepared for active service.

Mexican embassy officials said they had not been informed of any message sent by Trevino and that examination of what purported to be the text of the warning published in some of the morning papers was sufficient proof that it either was a badly garbled translation or a fabrication. They were not disposed to doubt, however, that some kind of a warning had been sent.

Revival of bandit activity in the lower Rio Grande valley last night resulted in vigorous action by authorities which was interpreted today here as presaging a determined attempt to nip the periodical recurrence of outlawry in the bud by dealing with marauders on American soil.

Soon after reports were received that bandits appeared near San Benito, several detachments of troops were sent to deal with them. Motor cars were commandeered in and two companies of the Twenty-sixth infantry were dispatched from Harlingen to Olmito, ten miles north of Brownsville, with orders to cut off the bandits' retreat across the Rio Grande into Mexico. Meanwhile, another force of two companies of infantry sent from San Benito earlier in the night to investigate reports that the Joe Scott ranch had been attacked, found their quarry ten miles east of San Benito. A running fight took place in which, according to meagre reports available here, three Mexicans were killed while the American force suffered no casualties.

In addition to these two forces a troop of cavalry was thrown into the game of hide and seek played by the Mexicans, when reports came that another bandit force had appeared near the Fresnos tract, 14 miles north of Brownsville, and had robbed a Mexican farmer of his horses. The man escaped unharmed and reported the occurrence to Fort Brown from where the cavalry was sent.

Reports from the various detachments are awaited eagerly here and at Ft. Brown today.

Much interest was displayed concerning the question whether if the bandits eluded the soldiers on this side of the Rio Grande and effected an escape into Mexico, the Americans would pursue a "hot trail" across the international boundary or leave the corralling of the outlaws to the Carranza soldiers under General Ricaut, who recently announced that he had placed a sufficient force in this territory to deal with all outbreaks and that any crossing by the Americans would meet with armed resistance.

(Someone has applied the name of "Hayville" to Coshocton, due to the marked influence the several branches of the Hay family have exerted thruout the entire corporate existence of the city. Could the talented Foss have had Coshocton in mind when writing the following delightful poem)

THE TOWN OF HAY

The town of Hay is far away,
The town of Hay is far:
Between its hills of green and gray
Its winding meadows are.
Within the quiet town of Hay
Is many a quiet glen,
And there by many a shaded way
Are homes of quiet men;
And there are many hearts alway
That turn with longing night and day,
Back to the town of Hay.

Within that good old town of Hay
There was no pride of birth,
And no man there pursued his way
A stranger in the earth:
And none were high and none were low,
Of golden hair or gray,
And each would grieve at others' woe
Down in the town of Hay;
And many a world-scorned soul today
Mid crowded thousands far away
Weeps for the town of Hay.

A road leads from the town of Hay
Forth to a world of din,
And winds and wanders far away,—
And many walked therein;
Far in the crowds of toil and stress
Their restless footsteps stray,—
Their souls have lost the quietness
Of that old town of Hay;
But in some respite of the fray,
In transient dreams they float away,
Back to the town of Hay.

Old men are in that town of Hay,
Amid its quiet trees,
Who dream of strong sons far away
Upon the stormy seas;
Old mothers, when the twilight dew
The woodbine leaves have pearled,
Dream of their boys who wander thru
The wideness of the world:
And tears fall in the twilight gray,
And prayers go up at close of day
In that old town of Hay.

A hillside in the town of Hay
Is slanting toward the sun,
And gathered, 'neath its headstones gray
Are sleepers, one by one;
And there are tears in distant lands,
And grief too deep for tears,
And farewells waved from phantom hands
Across the gulf of years:
And when they place that headstone gray,
It crushes hearts so far away,
From that old town of Hay.

Interest Increases In Bethel Camp Meeting

Bethel camp meeting on Roscoe hill is the scene of much religious fervor and enthusiasm. The meetings are being well attended, each session bringing out more people than the preceding. It is thot that today's crowds will fill the large tent.

Rev. C. F. English delivered a fine sermon Saturday morning, and in the afternoon an eloquent message was brot to the audience by Rev. J. F. Owen.

Rev. C. R. Chilton took for his subject Saturday evening the sixth chapter of Isaiah.

Among the new arrivals Saturday at Bethel were people from Toronto, Uhrichsville, Newcomerstown and New Philadelphia. Rev. Booth, of the Illinois conference, was spent Saturday, as was also Rev. J. J. Adams, of Trinway.

Today's program at Bethel is:

9:45 a. m., Sermon by Rev. Mr Chilton.

2:30 p m., Sermon by Rev. Mr. English.

6:30 p. m., Open air concert by the Salvation Army band.

7:30 p m., Sermon by Rev. Mr Owen

The roads leading up to the camp grounds have been improved and are now in good shape. Money for improving the roadway was donated.

The Mt Vernon road to the camp grounds is now in fine shape thru work done Saturday by Kleinknecht and Son.

The main road up Roscoe hill was worked Saturday by 10 or 15 men from the camp grounds and it is now in fine shape for use of buggies and automobiles.

R. R. COMPANY APPEALS TO ITS WORKMEN

Pennsy Calls For Volunteers In Case Of Strike By Trainmen

PHILADELPHIA, JUNE 17.—General Manager S. C. Long, of the Pennsylvania railway company today appealed to the 146,000 employes of the company's lines east of Pittsburgh asking for the continuance of their loyalty and calling for volunteers to maintain the service in the event of a trainmen's strike. The appeal reads in part.

"To the employes of the Pennsylvania railroad company:

"Your attention is called to the fact that a conference which has been in session in the city of New York, General Managers of the roads of the United tSates and the presidents of the four trainmen organizations has resulted in a disagreement. A strike ballot is being taken by the train employes of the Pennsylvania railroad company.

"The total cessation of train movement will result in stopping work in all departments, with consequent loss of earnings to all employes.

"This company employs 146,000 men. Of this number, only 25,000 are in the train service. It is not reasonable to expect that the wages of the remaining 121,000 remaining men, not in the train service shall be jeopardized or stopped by a strike of less than one-sixth of all the employes.

"The management, under the law, is required to operate the railroad in the interest of the public and if a strike eventuates, it will be incumbent upon all employes to be faithful to their duty and operate the road.

"If this strike of trainment is carried on, our company will require engineers, firemen, conductors, passenger and freight brakemen. The management calls the attention of all faithful employes to the necessity that may arise to meet such emergency.

"Those of you who feel and believe with the management that the traffic of the company must move, regardless of any wage controversy, and who are willing to volunteer their services to assist the company in doing its duty to the public, to the stockholders and to the loyal and faithful employes, will send their names to their immediate superior officers, stating for what service they volunteer.

"The management gives assurances to those who may volunteer, and whose services are accepted that they will be retained in the positions assigned them and receive the same protection that has always been afforded during crisis of this nature."

CLIP-CLIP.

William Draper, professional sheephearer of Union county, has made quite a record in his line. Draper has sheared 2204 sheep in Coshocton county 37 in Tuscarawas and 707 in Holmes, making a total of 2948 since March 24. Draper has missed but 12 days of work in that time. His highest day was Saturday, June 11, when he made a record mark of 80, with 46 as his half day mark.

Battle Opens On Whole Southwest Front In Russia

New Conflicts Are In Progress Along Austrian Border According To Report—French Reported To Have Been Victorious—Penetrate First And Second Lines.

BERLIN, JUNE 17—(By Wireless to Sayville.) — Austro-Hungarian troops south of the Dneister river in Galicia defeated a Russian cavalry force on Thursday, according to an official statement given out by the Austro-Hungarian army headquarters under date of June 6.

The statement also announces that new battles have been started on the whole front in Volhynia in southwestern Russian and bordering on Austria

The text of the Austrian statement follows: "South of the Dniester our troops repulsed the enemy's cavalry. Farther to the east there were only small engagements in this district.

"West of Visvovezyk, Russian attacks against our positions are in progress. Two officers and 400 Russians remained in the hands of our troops. Near Tarnopol there were no especial events.

"On the whole Volhynian front new combats have been started. On the Stokhod and the Styr, several enemy attempts to cross the river failed. The enemy as usual suffered heavy losses."

Report Russians Repulsed.

Progress for the Russians was admitted in the statement of June 13, the entrance of their cavalry into Zagadora, Snyatin and Horodenka being reported. They were repulsed on the Pruth, south of Boyan, and near Burkanow, on the Stripa. The fighting northwest of Tarnopol was continued uninterruptedly.

Renewed attacks by the Russians south of Boyan and north of Czernowitz, all of which were repulsed, were reported on the 15th. The fighting along the whole front continued on Friday.

French Win In Vosges.

PARIS, JUNE 17.—In the course of last night German troops attacked the French positions at Avocourt with grenades, says the official statement issued today by the French war department In the region of Le Mort Homme there was an intense bombardment.

In the Vosges, after a violent bombardment of Hill No. 425 to the east of Thann, French infantry, the statement adds, penetrated the first and second lines and brought back a number of German prisoners.

German aeroplanes have again bombarded Dunkirk. Another squadron of machines shelled Bar Le Duc. Four persons were killed and 15 wounded.

Destroyer Is Sunk.

LONDON, JUNE 17.—The British destroyer Eden has been sunk in the English channel in collision with another vessel, the admiralty announced today.

Thirty-one members of the crew were saved and three officers are missing. The collision occurred last night.

The Eden displaced 550 tons and was built in 1903. She was equipped with four three-inch and two 18-inch torpedo tubes. The lost ship was 220 feet long and 23 feet beam. Her normal crew consisted of 70 men.

A Central News dispatch from The Hague says that the German cruiser von der Thann was badly damaged in the sea fight off Jutland and has just been towed into Wilhelmshaven for repairs. The von der Thann is an 18-800 ton ship, mounting 11 and 6-inch guns. She was put in commission in 1907.

Italians Are Winning.

ROME, JUNE 17.—Italian troops have carried the Austrian positions of Malga, Fossetta and Monte Magari, between the Frenzela valley and Marcesina, according to an official statement given out at the war department today. The Italians took 203 prisoners and captured six guns and four machine guns.

"The Shadow of Doubt"

A Vivid and Vital Drama—Pulsing with Extraordinary Situations. Romantic in the extreme—with the Screen's most Ardent Wooer in a Perfect Role.

WHAT WOULD YOU DO

If you come into your own house after you had informed your wife you were leaving on a trip out of town for a few days, and found one man dickering with your safe, had him arrested, only to return and find another man in your bed chamber, with your wife in the house all the time, would any doubts of your wife's faithfulness enter your mind? These are only a few of the many problems which are intelligently worked out in the Equitable five-reel feature, "The Shadow of Doubt," at Pastime Theatre today, featuring Caryle Blackwell in the leading role. Moreover the development of the story proves that both men were there for legitimate reasons, which adds vim to the punch of the strong, dramatic climax in this extraordinary Blackwell picture.

Different Conditions.

Schoolteacher—I'm sorry to say, Mr. Jones, that your boy is very backward in his studies. Jones—That's strange. At home in conversation with me he seems to know it all.—Boston Transcript.

Fishing.

"Oh, I just love animals!" cried the enthusiastic girl.

"Perhaps you have noticed that I am a little hoarse," insinuated the young man who had a cold. — New York Times.

Drying an Umbrella.

An umbrella should never be opened in order to dry it, as the ribs get sprung, and it will never roll up neatly and tightly after once dried in this manner. Doing this will also spoil the cover by straining the weave unnaturally. The correct way to dry an umbrella is to stand it on the handle that the water may run off at the points instead of gathering at the ferrule and thus rotting the material.

Selecting a Husband.

I would warn maidens of marriageable age to exercise due caution in the selection of husbands. Choose a real man, not the kind that slaps himself on the wrist and wants to be called Jack instead of John and insists on addressing you as Margaret instead of Maggie or Christina instead of Tiny. Get a man whose masculine actions entitle him to wear trousers.—Zim in Cartoons Magazine.

Fifteen Cent Lunches.

A cashier in a Newspaper row lunch room told me that the average Bostonian spends but 15 cents for his lunch. The fifteen cent key on the cash register is worn smooth and the number "15" entirely rubbed off. Other keys on the machine show little sign of wear.—Boston Post.

Delicacy.

A woman went into a country bakery one hot, sultry summer day. "I'll have some of that nice currant cake," said she to the baker. "That ain't no currant cake, lady," said he, waving his arm gently to and fro over the delicacy.—New York Post.

AN ANCIENT CHURCH.

It Has Been In Use In France For Over a Thousand Years.

Before dinner we walked for a little in the gray evening and came to an old church—one of the oldest in France, it is said, built in the ninth century and called St. Michael's. (At Nantua, in the French Juras.) It is more than a thousand years old and looks it. It has not been much rebuilt, I think, for invasion and revolution appear seldom to have surmounted the natural ramparts of Nantua, and only the storm beat and the erosion of the centuries have written the story of decay. The hand of restoration has troubled it little.

We slipped in through the gathering dusk and tiptoed about, for there were a few lights flickering before the altar, and we saw the outlines of bowed heads. Presently a priest was silhouetted against the altar lights as he crossed and passed out by a side door. He was one of a long line that stretched back through more than half of the Christian era and through most of the history of France.

When the first priest passed in front of that altar France was still under the Carlovingian dynasty — under Charles the Fat, perhaps, and William of Normandy was not to conquer England until 200 years later. Then nearly 400 years more would creep by—dim, mediaeval years—before Joan of Arc should unfurl her banner of victory and martyrdom.

You see how far back into the mists we are stepping here. And all these evenings the altar lights have been lit and the ministration of priests has not failed.—Albert Bigelow Paine in Harper's Magazine.

The Sudden Shock.

"Your wife has received some sudden shock. What has happened?"

"I don't know, doctor. I came home early last night"

"Ah, that presumably accounts for it."

Makes Her Dumb.

Nodd—What! You are out every night until 3! Isn't midnight late enough? Todd—I find that when I get home at midnight my wife can talk to me, but when I get home at 3 words fail her.—Life.

Sam and Sue

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1916, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

Sam Horton was a young butcher. He was short and squat and twenty-two years old. He had a waddle like a goose when he walked. He moved over from the town of Grand Ledge to the town of Eaton Rapids and opened a butcher shop.

Sue Smith had got eighteen years old. She was a good looking girl, but pert to the point of impudence.

Sam brought a bobtailed dog over from Grand Ledge with him.

Miss Sue owned a crosseyed cat. She was not a handsome feline, but she was an affectionate one. Unlike most cats, she would follow her mistress about town like a loving dog. When Sue Smith heard that a new butcher had come to town and that he was a young man who would probably be looking around for a wife she did not wait long before she presented herself at the shop and asked for a juicy piece of meat for her companion. The cat, of course, followed her. She had also heard the news, and she hoped for a change from the old butcher.

While the young butcher was smiling and bowing and filling the order and saying to himself that a good looking girl stood before him his bobtailed dog entered the shop. There was a growl and a snarl, and crosseyed cat, bobtailed dog, girl and butcher and sawdust seemed to be all mixed up. The row lasted until the cat flew out, and then Sue Smith turned to the butcher and said:

"I would like to burn your dog, sir!" exclaimed Miss Sue as she flashed the young man a look of indignation.

"Oh, as to that," he replied with a faint smile, "your old cat may suddenly disappear off the earth!"

And that was how her crosseyed cat and his bobtailed dog first met, and there were no cooing doves around to make them remember the first meeting with pleasure. Miss Sue went around telling all her friends that the new butcher not only had the heart of a fiend, but he dared stand right up to her and sass back.

During that year they met time after time. Sometimes the dog and the cat were along, and sometimes they were not. When they were not there was just as much cause for sarcastic words as when they were. For instance, when the butcher was about to pass Miss Smith's gate one day and Miss Sue was hanging over it he lifted his hat and made a grand bow and said:

"I trust, Miss Smith, that your old cat is dead and buried."

"Sir," she replied, wanting to hit him in a new place this time, "I was watching your walk as you came up the street. It is not a walk; it is a waddle. You walk like a goose, sir."

And they glared at each other and glared and glared, and Sam finally passed on, and Sue went into the house with tears in her eyes, to be asked by her mother:

"What's happened now?"

"It's that Sam Horton. He had the cheek, after what I have said about him, to accept an invitation to Molly Hard's birthday party last night. Yes, he was there. Not only was he there, but Molly had several good words for him. Oh, how I hate him!"

"There, there, daughter. Don't get so worked up about it," soothed the mother. "This is a strange world, and it wouldn't be so very strange if love came to you both by and by."

"Never!" was the terrible reply.

Sam Horton was hurt by having his walk called a waddle, but there was nobody to console him. Therefore as he sawed a beef bone in two he consoled himself by saying:

"Darn that Smith girl! I will marry her or die!"

One day Sam Horton had gone out into the country with his horse and wagon to buy a calf. On that same day Miss Susie Smith had taken a walk about a mile and sat down on the bank of the river. She was a bit worried over the young butcher. It was becoming more and more difficult for her to find hard words to apply to him. When last he had passed her his face almost wore a smile.

She was meditating very deeply on this weighty subject when Sam and his cart and calf came in sight of the road. He was driving like all butchers drive. The horse was at his best trot, and the driver was looking around to view the landscape. That horse was headed in an almost straight line for the girl. She saw it and gasped. She saw it and hastily rose up and rather more hastily the treacherous soil under her feet crumbled away, and she went tumbling down the bank and landed in the river with a great splash. She did not know when the butcher pulled up his horse and jumped from his cart. She did not know when he came limping after her. She did not know when he dived after her and crawled up the bank with her dripping form in his arms. She did not know when he arrived at her father's gate with the cheerful calf and the half drowned girl in his cart.

In fact, Miss Sue Smith was not much on the know for a good many hours and then came back to her normal condition to hear her mother say to her father:

"There! That settles it. You see if they aren't married within six months. All that was needed was something like this!"

And the dog and cat lived happy together forever more.

SENIORS HAVE GAY TIME AT TORONTO

The following item about the trip of the graduating class of Coshocton high school was clipped from the Toronto, Can., World of Thursday, June 15:

Over 50 visitors from the Coshocton High school were entertained at the Carls-Rite hotel last night. The senior class of the high school in this Ohio town worked and saved thruout the year in order that the members of the year could take a trip on graduating. The plan has been in operation several years.

This year the class visited Cleveland, Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Toronto. Last night they were supplied by the hotel with favors, including various noise making devices and balloons and had quite a gay party. This afternoon they leave on the return trip. The party is chaperoned by Mrs. F. C. W. Trott, vice-president of the board of education, Mrs. M. D. Custer and Mr. A. D. Preston.

GRANGE LECTURERS TO HOLD MEETING

The Subordinate grange lecture conference of District 11 consisting of Muskingum, Licking, Knox, Holmes and Coshocton counties will be held at the Chamber of Commerce hall, Coshocton, Thursday, June 22. Forenoon session at 10:30 o'clock. Mrs. Harriet Dickson, State Grange lecturer, of Piqua, O., will preside. Members of the grange are invited.

Mrs. Dickson will attend the Wednesday evening, June 21st meeting of Oak Grove grange. All members are requested to be present. Refreshments will be served.

THINNING FRUIT IS ADVOCATED

By practicing a system of fruit thinnings, R. B. Cruikeshank, of the Agricultural College Extension Service, Ohio State University, points out that orchardists in Ohio can secure larger yields and consequently greater profits because of a better quality of fruit. Thinning relieves overweight, makes the fruit more uniform in size, helps to prevent the spread of brown rot and is also a means of destroying insect infested and diseased fruits.

Two methods of thinning are followed; one by pruning the superfluous branches and the other by direct picking. Apples may be thinned when about the size of hickory nuts to the distance of 4 or 5 inches.

HOT WATER THE BEST LIVER AND BOWEL MEDICINE

Says glass of hot water before breakfast washes poisons from system.

Physicians the world over recommend the inside bath, claiming this is of vastly more importance than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing ill health, while the pores in the ten yards of bowels do.

Men and women are urged to drink each morning, before breakfast a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of helping to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, poisons, sour bile and toxins; thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Just as soap and hot water cleanse and freshen the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the eliminative organs.

Those who wake up with bad breath, coated tongue, nasty taste or have a dull, aching head, sallow complexion, acid stomach; others who are subject to bilious attacks or constipation, should obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to demonstrate the value of inside bathing. Those who continue it each morning are assured of pronounced results, both in regard to health and appearance.

LAFAYETTE WINS FROM LOCAL TEAM

The West Lafayette town team won from the Coshocton Rebels at West Lafayette Saturday by a score of 6 to 5. Burt, pitching for West Lafayette was effective and caused 14 Coshocton men to wiff. Bordenkircher for the Rebels fanned 5. Saturday's victory was the fifth straight for West Lafayette. They play Newcomerstown at West Lafayette Saturday.

If All the World Were Perfect.

If all the world were perfect an intolerable sameness would be stamped upon humanity from one end of the earth to the other. "For the love of heaven," some one has exclaimed, "let me retain my defects. That is the only thing I really have." Moreover, there are some really quite captivating human defects. But it is important to control them so that they may never become obnoxious.—Anatole Le Braz in Outlook.

To Mend a Tablecloth.

When a tablecloth begins to break or a small hole appears, cut a piece of white paper some larger than the place to be mended, baste securely over the hole and stitch on sewing machine, lengthwise and crosswise, very closely and evenly. It will look much neater and is easier than darning or patching by hand. I also mend sheets and bedspreads the same way. The paper will disappear when washed.—Farm and Fireside.

Belated Wisdom.

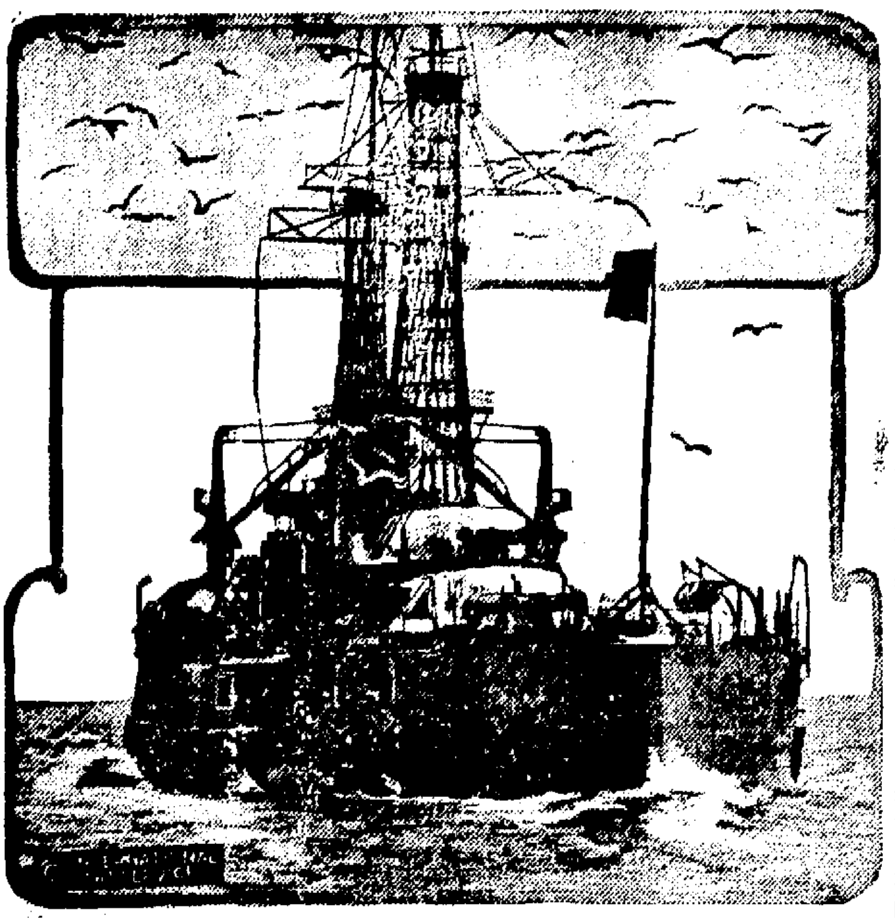
"What I want to know, Johnny," demanded the stern parent, "is why you picked a quarrel with that bad boy next door?"

"I don't know, sir," replied the injured culprit. "but I s'pose it must have been 'cause I didn't know what a bad boy he was."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Needless Effort.

Sergeant (at drill)—Company, two paces forward! March! Old Country Woman (looking on)—That's just like them officers. Couldn't he take two paces forrard 'isself instead o' moving the whole regiment?—London Opinion.

SEAGULLS RACING WITH THE WORLD'S GREATEST BATTLESHIP IN SPEED TRIALS



This unique picture was taken during the speed trials of the United States superdreadnaught Pennsylvania off the coast of Maine and shows the great seafighter, considered by naval experts to be the strongest afloat, surrounded by racing seagulls. The picture shows the superimposed turrets each containing three 15-inch guns of a design to be found only on this ship.

ARGENBRIGHT GAME TODAY

If the weather man will just be fair this afternoon there will be a great base ball game at the Red Sea diamond, according to Manager Otto Bries of the Federals. The Columbus Argenbrights are to mix it with the local ball tossers and an interesting game is being anticipated by those who know the ability of the Federals and have at the same time a good line of dope on the record of the Argenbrights. The Red Sea diamond will be a lively spot this afternoon and the lovers of good ball will probably get to see a thriller. If it is not all this and more Manager Bries says he will miss his guess. The Argenbrights are ranked among the top notchers in amateur ranks in the Capital city and are said to be semi-professionals.

Despite this Manager Bries feels that the Federals will take the measure of the Argenbrights who will line up this afternoon against the Federals at the Red Sea diamond in this order: L. Myers, 3b; Detwiller, 2b; Cashdollar, lf, formerly with Newark; Millirons, c, formerly with Lima in the Ohio State League; Hastings, ss; Plank, rf; Davis, mf; Schaeffer, 1b; McClure, p, best pitcher at the Columbus barracks; Davis, p; Butler, p.

Manager Bries assures the public that the Red Sea diamond is now in shape to dry quickly after rains, and he states that rain Saturday night or Sunday morning will not prevent play this afternoon.

Interpreting a Problem.

Apropos of the problem of the greatest number that can be expressed by three figures, L. Capitaine writes that the figures 9^{9^9} may be interpreted in two different ways. They may mean the ninth power of the ninth power of 9, or they may mean 9 raised to the ninth power of 9.

The ninth power of 9 is 387,420,489. This number raised to the ninth power is nothing so tremendous; any one could do the necessary calculation with a little time, as the result has only about seventy-five figures. But if we accept the second interpretation—9 raised to the ninth power of 9—it means that we shall have to multiply 9 by itself 387,420,489 times, which is a very different thing.

SENIORS HAVE GAY TIME AT TORONTO

The following item about the trip of the graduating class of Coshocton high school was clipped from the Toronto, Can., World of Thursday, June 15.

Over 50 visitors from the Coshocton High school were entertained at the Carls-Rite hotel last night. The senior class of the high school in this Ohio town worked and saved thruout the year in order that the members of the year could take a trip on graduation. The plan has been in operation several years.

This year the class visited Cleveland, Buffalo, Niagara Falls and Toronto. Last night they were supplied by the hotel with favors, including various noise making devices and balloons and had quite a gay party. This afternoon they leave on the return trip. The party is chaperoned by Mrs. F. C. W. Trott, vice president of the board of education, Mrs. M. D. Custer and Mr. A. D. Preston.

GRANGE LECTURERS TO HOLD MEETING

The Subordinate grange lecture conference of District 11 consisting of Muskingum, Licking, Knox, Holmes and Coshocton counties will be held at the Chamber of Commerce hall, Coshocton, Thursday, June 22. Forenoon session at 10:30 o'clock. Mrs. Harriet Dickson, State Grange lecturer, of Piqua, O., will preside. Members of the grange are invited.

Mrs. Dickson will attend the Wednesday evening, June 21st meeting of Oak Grove grange. All members are requested to be present. Refreshments will be served.

THINNING FRUIT IS ADVOCATED

By practicing a system of fruit thinnings, R. B. Cruikshank, of the Agricultural College Extension Service, Ohio State University, points out that orchardists in Ohio can secure larger yields and consequently greater profits because of a better quality of fruit. Thinning relieves overweight, makes the fruit more uniform in size, helps to prevent the spread of brown rot and is also a means of destroying insect infested and diseased fruits.

Two methods of thinning are followed; one by pruning the superfluous branches and the other by direct picking. Apples may be thinned when about the size of hickory nuts to the distance of 4 or 5 inches.

HOT WATER THE BEST LIVER AND BOWEL MEDICINE

Says glass of hot water before breakfast washes poisons from system.

Physicians the world over recommend the inside bath, claiming this is of vastly more importance than outside cleanliness, because the skin pores do not absorb impurities into the blood, causing ill health, while the pores in the ten yards of bowels do.

Men and women are urged to drink each morning, before breakfast a glass of hot water with a teaspoonful of limestone phosphate in it, as a harmless means of helping to wash from the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels the previous day's indigestible material, poisons, sour bile and toxins thus cleansing, sweetening and purifying the entire alimentary canal before putting more food into the stomach.

Just as soap and hot water cleanse and freshen the skin, so hot water and limestone phosphate act on the eliminative organs.

Those who wake up with bad breath, coated tongue, nasty taste or have a dull, aching head, sallow complexion, acid stomach; others who are subject to bilious attacks or constipation, should obtain a quarter pound of limestone phosphate at the drug store. This will cost very little but is sufficient to demonstrate the value of inside bathing. Those who continue it each morning are assured of pronounced results, both in regard to health and appearance.

LAFAYETTE WINS FROM LOCAL TEAM

The West Lafayette town team won from the Coshocton Rebels at West Lafayette Saturday by a score of 6 to 5. Burt, pitching for West Lafayette was effective and caused 14 Coshocton men to wiff. Bordenkircher for the Rebels fanned 5. Saturday's victory was the fifth straight for West Lafayette. They play Newcomerstown at West Lafayette Saturday.

If All the World Were Perfect.

If all the world were perfect an intolerable sameness would be stamped upon humanity from one end of the earth to the other. "For the love of heaven," some one has exclaimed, "let me retain my defects. That is the only thing I really have." Moreover, there are some really quite captivating human defects. But it is important to control them so that they may never become obnoxious.—Anatole Le Braz in Outlook.

To Mend a Tablecloth.

When a tablecloth begins to break or a small hole appears, cut a piece of white paper some larger than the place to be mended, baste securely over the hole and stitch on sewing machine, lengthwise and crosswise, very closely and evenly. It will look much neater and is easier than darning or patching by hand. I also mend sheets and bedspreads the same way. The paper will disappear when washed.—Farm and Fireside.

Belated Wisdom.

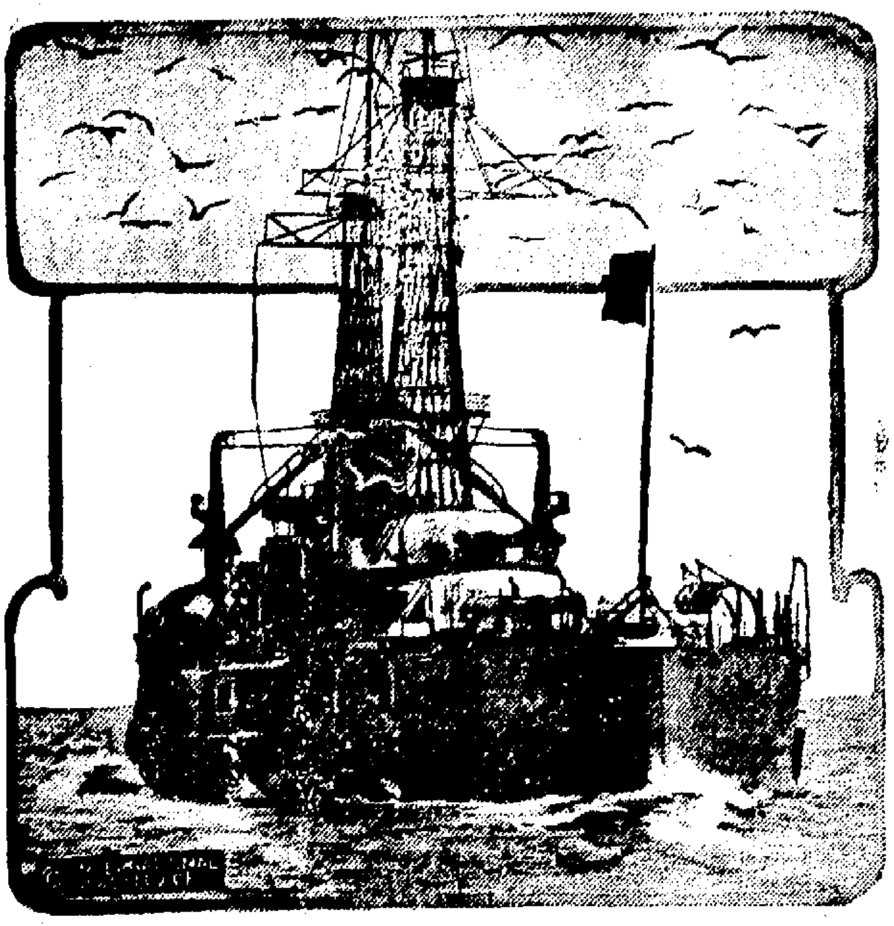
"What I want to know, Johnny," demanded the stern parent, "is why you picked a quarrel with that bad boy next door?"

"I don't know, sir," replied the injured culprit, "but I s'pose it must have been 'cause I didn't know what a bad boy he was."—Richmond Times-Dispatch.

Needless Effort.

Sergeant (at drill)—Company, two paces forward! March! Old Country Woman (looking on)—That's just like them officers. Couldn't he take two paces forrard 'isself instead o' moving the whole regiment?—London Opinion.

SEAGULLS RACING WITH THE WORLD'S GREATEST BATTLESHIP IN SPEED TRIALS



This unique picture was taken during the speed trials of the United States superdreadnaught Pennsylvania off the coast of Maine and shows the great seafighter, considered by naval experts to be the strongest afloat, surrounded by racing seagulls. The picture shows the superimposed turrets each containing three 15-inch guns of a design to be found only on this ship.

ARGENBRIGHT GAME TODAY

If the weather man will just be fair this afternoon there will be a great base ball game at the Red Sea diamond, according to Manager Otto Bries of the Federals. The Columbus Argenbrights are to mix it with the local ball tossers and an interesting game is being anticipated by those who know the ability of the Federals and have at the same time a good line of dope on the record of the Argenbrights. The Red Sea diamond will be a lively spot this afternoon and the lovers of good ball will probably get to see a thriller. If it is not all this and more Manager Bries says he will miss his guess. The Argenbrights are ranked among the top notchers in amateur ranks in the Capital city and are said to be semi-professionals.

Despite this Manager Bries feels that the Federals will take the measure of the Argenbrights who will line up this afternoon against the Federals at the Red Sea diamond in this order: L. Myers, 3b; Detwiller, 2b; Cashdollar, lf, formerly with Newark; Millirons, c, formerly with Lima in the Ohio State League; Hastings, ss; Plank, rf; Davis, mf; Schaeffer, 1b; McClure, p, best pitcher at the Columbus barracks; Davis, p; Butler, p.

Manager Bries assures the public that the Red Sea diamond is now in shape to dry quickly after rains, and he states that rain Saturday night or Sunday morning will not prevent play this afternoon.

Interpreting a Problem.

Apropos of the problem of the greatest number that can be expressed by three figures, L. Capitaine writes that the figures 9^{9^9} may be interpreted in two different ways. They may mean the ninth power of the ninth power of 9, or they may mean 9 raised to the ninth power of 9.

The ninth power of 9 is 387,420,489. This number raised to the ninth power is nothing so tremendous; any one could do the necessary calculation with a little time, as the result has only about seventy-five figures. But if we accept the second interpretation—9 raised to the ninth power of 9—it means that we shall have to multiply 9 by itself 387,420,489 times, which is a very different thing.

EXTREME WEAKNESS AND SUFFERING

Read How Mrs. Goodling got Relief and Strength.

York, Pa.—"I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and found it to be all you say it is. I was so sick that I could not stand at my sink to wash dishes and I could not sit without a pillow under me. I had the doctor every few days but since I have taken the Compound I don't have to send for him. I have had three children and could not raise any of them, but since I have taken the Compound I have a bright baby boy. I advise every suffering woman to try it and get relief. It has done wonders for me."—Mrs. CATHARINE GOODLING, 133 E. King Street, York, Pa.

When a medicine has been successful in bringing health to so many, no woman has a right to say without trying it, "I do not believe it will help me." There must be more than a hundred thousand women in this country who, like Mrs. Goodling, have proven what wonders Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound can do for weak and ailing women. Try it and see for yourself.

If there are any complications you don't understand, write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass.

THIRST TAMES WILD BEASTS.

Savage Brutes Respect Each Other's Right to Drinking Water.

Just as one dog will respect another dog's bone so even the fiercest forest beasts have their unwritten laws and their little conventions.

One common idea which has found its way into scores of books of adventure is that the lion and tiger take advantage of the insistent call of thirst to get a supper—that is to say, they go down to the water pool, the only one for miles around, take a good drink themselves and then lie in wait for some gazelle or giraffe or ibex coming there for a like purpose in order to spring upon the poor creature while in the act of drinking and make a meal of it.

Yet this is a libelous estimate of wild beast character. The fact is that there is a sort of truce of the water hole in jungle and forest. As far as killing is concerned the drinking place is out of bounds. There is an invisible notice board on its banks which says, "Live and Let Live," and it is implicitly obeyed.

There is an order of precedence. The rhinoceros gets first drink. He is the Dreadnought of the forest jungle. Then comes that old ironclad the elephant.

When he has lowered the tide mark and made the water more like coffee than anything else the big pussy cats stroll down to quench their ardent tongues—the lions, the leopards in Africa, the tigers in India, the jaguars and pumas in South America.

Meanwhile the shy animals—the giraffes, deer, springboks and even the buffaloes, although they are a match for a lion—stand in the background and wait till the carnivora have done. But the latter never prevent their approach to the water or waylay them on their retirement. And that is better manners—aye, and better morals—than many men show —Pearson's.

The STRADIVARA

PHONOGRAPH

"Known For Tone"

A Coshocton product. Its amazing success is attested by the following letters--one an order from our traveling salesman--the other a splendid testimonial.

This is but ONE order from ONE dealer, and will give some idea of the proportions our output will attain.

THE HOLLENDEN HOTEL

Cleveland, June 15, 1916.

Mr. F. Compton,
C/o Compton Price Co.,
Coshocton, Ohio.

Dear Mr. Compton:

I closed a deal last night with a firm of this city who is going to open a large talking machine store. We are going to draw up our contract Tuesday of next week. He guarantees to take 50 machines a week the first six months and 100 machines thereafter. The settlement is to be made each month His initial order will be $2500. He will expect immediate shipment. I may come down to Coshocton Sunday.

I am also enclosing you a testimonial which I received from Mr. Logan, which was unsolicited After reading this over, please return it to me.

I beg to remain,

Respectfully yours,
JOHN V. KALVA.

June 13, 1916

Compton-Price Co.,
Coshocton, Ohio.
Dear Mr. Kalva:

After having heard a number of violin records on the STRADIVARA, I can say, without reservation, that they come the nearest to producing the real violin tone of any machine that I have ever listened to.

The utter absence of surface tone in scratching make the records a real delight.

Very sincerely,
(Signed) Walter Logan.

We have been so rushed with orders from our dealers that we have not had an opportunity to properly introduce and demonstrate this wonderful Stradivara phonograph to our own Coshocton public. We will now have samples in our down town warerooms and assure you it will be a pleasure to show you the merits of this remarkable invention.

Remember, the Stradivara plays every make of record—and without extra attachments. No other machine uses such beautiful veneers. The tone is incomparably beautiful!

A CHANGE

With this issue L. E. Judd severs a connection with The Morning Tribune which has lasted more than four years. He came to The Tribune without newspaper experience, a boy in his teens, and leaves it a thoro going newspaper man to assume one of the most difficult and responsible jobs in the world—the city editorship of a new paper.

Whatever newspaper education he has he has acquired on this paper. We trust his past four years' training will not fail him in the new problems he will have to solve in Columbus. The small daily paper is the training school for big city journalism. We hope The Tribune will always be able to send young men into the larger newspaper field as well equipped by temperament and training as we know Gene Judd to be.

Mr. Judd's successor as city editor of The Tribune is W. R. Cochran, a seasoned newspaper man who worked on local papers at the time of their change from the weekly to the daily field. In recent years he has successfully managed and published The Dresden Transcript. He has a wide acquaintance and many friends in both Coshocton and Muskingum counties who wish him well in his new endeavor.

THE MUSINGS OF MOSES

We find plenty of doctors who are sick, and have no difficulty in pointing out lawyers who are lawless. Some of the worst-dressed people are tailors and dressmakers. There are dentists who have pyorrhea alveolaris, and veterinarians whose horses are laid up with the heaves, spavins and pemphigoid psoriasis. Promoters of hair restorers are usually bald. Even ministers have been known to do things forbidden by the Decalog.

And so we should expect, as a matter of course, to find many men who constantly espouse truth, but who rarely express it. The truthful man lives truth, but does not discuss it. It is as indelicate and coarse for a man to boast of his truthfulness as for a woman to boast of her chastity. Truth is seated in the heart and not in the mouth. Our finest attributes are silent, still our neighbors recognize them, while our faults and sins are mouthed to the world thru our own speech.

Students of advertising should be taught one great truth that is usually overlooked—success comes from what you do, not from what you memorize.

If your circulation is small, so also are your white paper bills. The law of compensation is eternal.

Law-makers seem to create more trouble than they correct.

Two words are all that men require as a declaration of principles—COMMON SENSE.

Three words constitute the only code of ethics that mankind needs—THE GOLDEN RULE.

To buy advertising requires little intellect, but to secure it free requires genius.

Advertising has survived all the rascals who ever employed it. Whether it can survive the professional reformers remains to be seen.

Anger gets you nowhere except to a sanitarium. Many doctors thrive because many people get mad.

A writer's ability is measured, not by the number of words he gets out of a gallon of ink, but by the intellectual mileage he covers.

I have been intimately concerned with advertising for over twenty years. I have touched it and been touched by it from seven-and-fifty angles, and I carry some deep scars. My experience has been that advertisers, as a whole, are a pretty decent and square lot of people, and that the profession is as clean and straight as any other aggregation of men that can be named. There are those who dispute what I have here said, but it is so just the same, and Things That Are So rise superior to Things That Are Not.

More money is spent in this country for chewing gum than for books, which seems to explain why so many more people exercise their jaws than their intellects. Also it indicates that gum advertising is better than book advertising. If I were a book publisher, I'd go out and sign up one of Wrigley's best men for a long term.

Advertising is the gentle art of annexing the other fellow's coin without the assistance of a dark lantern and a jimmy.

The mintage of advertising wisdom is this: Promote something useful and satisfy those who buy it.

Very few things in advertising have been distilled in the alembic of time and found to be fixed facts. This is because advertising is subject to no law, controlled by no known rules, and is as uncertain as the finding of a jury. It is so because everything hinges on the Man Behind the Advertising, and advertising men are as variable as the moods of a maiden in love. All we know is that sometimes advertising pays, and sometimes it doesn't.

Advertising is not art. It is not science. It is not the result of study, nor is it begotten second hand. It is something that leaps hot from the heart, something that seizes the soul with a passion so intense that it urges a man on and on and on, as Columbus was urged when he pointed the prows of his vessels in the direction where the sun goes down.

There are two general classes into which advertisers may be divided. The first is made up of men who know more than they will admit. The second is made up of men who admit a great deal more than they know. The man who is cocksure of results, if you do advertising his way, is not so safe to follow as the fellow who is guarded in his predictions.

Advertising is a good deal like love. When you come to face a live wire of either proposition, what you have read or heard on the subject does not measure up to the full specifications of experience itself. Two thousand years ago Ovid thought he had mastered the elusive thing we call Love, and proceeded to reduce it to an art. His books have survived the centuries and have become classics, but people who make love according to Ovid are not quite so successful in sidestepping alimony as those who do their courting their own way. Every advertising proposition, like every woman, is peculiar to itself, and canned instructions are not to be relied upon.

It is not what you get, but what you expect to get, that makes life worth while.—Bert Moses in Newspaperdom.

A LITTLE SLEEP

PRESIDENTIAL POINTERS

With the 18th Presidential election, of 1856, came the advent of the Republican party as a national organization. It took 17 ballots for the Democrats to name James Buchanan, Pennsylvania's only President, while the Republicans nominated John C. Fremont, the "pathfinder," on the first ballot. The American or Know Nothing party nominated Millard Fillmore. Again as in 1852 thirty one States took part with 296 electoral votes, divided as follows: Buchanan 174, Fremont 114, Fillmore 8. For the first time over 4,000,000 votes were cast.

BUCKWHEAT A CATCH CROP

Buckwheat is recommended by F. W. Struble of the farm crop department, Ohio State University, for ground where the spring crops have failed or it is too late to plant corn. This cereal can be planted from July 1 to 10 and will be ready for harvest in 8 or 8 weeks. The land can then be cropped in a regular rotation again. Buckwheat will grow well on land lacking in fertility and on ground less carefully prepared than for other grains but will respond quickly to good treatment. It is frequently used by farmers as a weed eradicator, because it grows quickly and covers the ground almost completely. One bushel sown broadcast is sufficient to seed an acre.

PEOPLES' FORUM

WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

Editor The Tribune:

Be not deceived when some one tells you the Democratic and Republican nation conventions endorsed Woman Suffrage. They favored woman suffrage, just as the Liquor League favored Prohibition in Ohio in 1914 and 1915 in the wet and dry campaigns. The Liquor League said "We are in favor of Prohibition in all cities or corporated towns, that want Prohibition, but we do not favor it for the whole state."

They made their campaign on the retaining of the Beall law and won, which gives the cities the privilege of voting every two years whether they shall have prohibition or not. The same with these national conventions. They said we favor woman suffrage when the state votes to have suffrage, but remember this is as far as they went, simply endorsed "state rights" and is a clever political subterfuge presented to the voters.

(Signed) Woman Suffrage.

INDIA'S FAMOUS ROAD.

It Was the World's Greatest Highway Before Rome Was Born.

Search where you will, you will find no highway in the whole world so romantic as the Grand Trunk road of India.

A stately avenue of three roads in one—the center of hard metal, the roads on each side ankle deep in silvery dust—fringed by double rows of trees. It runs for 1,400 miles through the vast northern plain which skirts the Himalayas, from Calcutta to far Peshawur, which keeps sentinel at the gate of Afghanistan.

From horizon to horizon it stretches like a broad white ribbon, as seemingly straight as if traced by a gigantic ruler. And dotted along its entire length are hundreds of serais (wayside rest houses), each with its arched and turreted gateway, its spacious inclosure, in which humans share shelter with oxen, camels and goats, and its central well of sparkling water.

For 3,000 years the Himalayas have looked down on this road and seen it as they see it today. It was the world's greatest highway before Rome was cradled, when the aboriginal Indians drove their cattle over the very spot where the motorcar dashes today.

Alexander the Great led his Greeks along it to the conquest of northern India, and Buddha himself took his daily walks along it centuries before Christ was cradled.

It has seen a hundred generations come and go, a score of dynasties rise and fall. And yet today it is to the eye exactly the same as in the long gone years when Nineveh was a proud city—New York Journal.

Parrots of Mexico.

What the wild pigeon once was in point of numbers to the United States the parrot, of varying shades of color and all sizes, is to old Mexico. Flights of these birds frequently darken the midday sun in the hot country, and they become so tame around the camps of engineers that the birds are given individual names and soon become regular pets. Whenever the parrots desert the forest and alight on the ground in the open spaces of the jungle the natives recognize their actions as sure warning of an impending earthquake.

Second Sight.

An Irishman and his English friend were out rabbit shooting. They had been very unsuccessful and were returning, downhearted, when they saw a hare dart out of the hedge.

Mike, in amazement, failed to shoot, and the hare escaped.

"Why didn't you shoot it?" asked the Englishman

"Shure," said Mike, "I didn't see it till it was out of sight."—London Telegraph.

"What is a coat of arms, pa?"

"Something that the Venus de Milo didn't have to wear."—Exchange.

JUNGLE BEAST IN ROLE OF CUPID

SPRANG AT KNEELING GIRL.

Man Had to Lasso His Sweetheart and Drag Her Out of Animal's Reach Before Killing Attacker With His Pistol—She Is Now His Wife.

IN the library of the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Knight, near New Amsterdam, British Guiana, South America, is a handsome jaguar skin rug. The skin is a perfect specimen but for a ragged cut in the neck.

Four years ago Albert Knight, a native of Boston, went to New Amsterdam as the assistant to the general manager of a big sugar plantation, ten miles up the Berbice river. An English girl visited the manager, her uncle.

Meet and Fall In Love.

During the first two weeks of her visit young Knight was absent from the plantation on a trip to the States to buy machinery, so one morning when a much tanned young man of twenty-nine was introduced to Miss Sutro as her uncle's assistant she was certain that the remainder of her visit would be the best of all. Young Knight was just as certain that the climax of his four years on the plantation had been reached. They loved, but he hesitated to ask her to share his life in the jungle.

It was two days before the boat was to sail from Georgetown with Miss Sutro that Knight proposed a ride along the "bush road" leading into the hills.

Jaguar Appears on Scene.

At the turn of the road which concealed the riders from the plantation house Knight caught the gleam of a tawny coat, speckled with rosettes of yellow, crossing the road just ahead of them. Generally the jaguar avoids man.

But this special jaguar had a mission to perform, even at the cost of its life. A hundred yards farther along the road Knight and Miss Sutro had ridden when Knight pulled up his horse to show his skill with a lasso. He made a slipknot in the tether rope which hung at his saddle and was preparing to throw the noose at an overhanging limb of a tree when Miss Sutro espied some wild flowers a short distance away and dismounted to pluck them.

JUST THEN THE JAGUAR LEAPED.

So it was that Knight was standing at the heads of the horses, with their reins in his left hand and the improvised lasso in his right, while Miss Sutro, half a dozen yards away, was kneeling, her hands half filled with the flowers she had plucked, when the breaking of a twig caused the young man to look to his right.

He Lassoed His Sweetheart.

Not twenty feet from the girl Knight saw "el tigre" crouched for a spring. Miss Sutro was the target. Afraid to call to the young woman of her danger for fear of precipitating the jaguar's attack, Knight, dropping the reins of the horses, tugged at his automatic pistol, which stuck in his holster. The next instant he bethought himself of the lasso. Twice it encircled his head before he let go the noose. This fell unerringly about the kneeling girl, who half rose as the noose tightened about her waist, only to be thrown and dragged half a dozen feet.

Knight was none too soon, for scarcely had he made his cast when the jaguar leaped. Missing its victim, the jaguar turned with a snarl, but by this time Knight had worked his pistol loose with his left hand and without taking the time to change it to his right fired. The bullet found a lodging place in the jaguar's throat, and the wounded animal slunk away.

Miss Sutro fainted, and when she revived Knight was holding her in his arms and murmuring, "I love you."

A hunting party afterward trailed the jaguar and found it dead near the scene of the attack.—Chicago Tribune.

USE LITMUS PAPER AS A SOIL TESTER

Have you tested your soil for acidity? Just a few cents worth of blue litmus paper will enable each farmer in Ohio to determine whether his soil needs lime now. One of the easiest methods of testing is pointed out by M. A. Bachtell, of the Agricultural College Extension Service, Ohio State University, is to go into a field when the soil is moist, insert a knife blade into the under layer of soil and place a strip of the litmus paper in the opening made by the blade. Then press the soil firmly together on the paper and let stand for 20 minutes. Then remove the paper and notice its appearance. If delicate streaks of red are found on the paper, lime should be applied to correct the acidity. Ordinarily from 2 to 4 tons of grounds limestone will neutralize the acids in soil.

Examine Your TEETH Tonight

—after you clean them.

You will find, in all probability, an accumulation of tartar on the enamel and bits of food deposit hiding between the crevices. YOUR DENTIFRICE does not FULLY CLEAN! Loss of teeth is caused usually by one of two conditions—Pyorrhea or decay, both of which develop, as a rule, only in the mouth where germ-laden tartar is present.

SENRECO, the recently discovered formula of a dental specialist, is two-fold in its action. First, it REALLY CLEANS, embodying specially prepared, soluble granules unusually effective in cleaning away food deposits. Second, it is particularly destructive to the germ of Pyorrhea. Yet it is perfectly safe, containing neither injurious chemicals nor hard grit.

Avoid Pyorrhea and decay. Get Senreco from your dealer today. In large tubes, 25c. Send 4c to Senreco, 304 Walnut Street, Cincinnati, Ohio, for liberal-sized trial package.
